PRESS RELEASE

New York City, NY: Global Security Group, Inc., a provider of a variety of protective, investigative and training services, has been approved by the United States Attorney's Office as a monitor of federal defendants pursuant to court ordered bail conditions. The monitoring of criminal defendants under "house arrest" or home detention by vetted private security firms is an increasingly common option that allows a defendant to petition the court to consider private monitoring as an alternative to pre-trial detention. In certain cases, subject to the approval of the court, a defendant can hire a security company to monitor their activities on a 24-hour a day basis. This type of monitoring can satisfy the concerns of the government (risk of flight, witness tampering, removal of assets/funds, improper communication to other defendants or witnesses etc.) while allowing the defendant to remain at home.

The defendant will generally be required to wear an ankle bracelet (also known as a "scram" or "house arrest" bracelet) in addition to the retention of an authorized firm to ensure that the terms ordered by the court are followed. The company considered by the defendant to provide these services must first be vetted by the Office of the United States Attorney and then approved by the court. Global Security Group, Inc. is one of the very few firms approved to provide these court ordered services and has extensive experience in monitoring defendants facing charges in the federal judicial system.

These services include:

- Home detention of defendants by armed current/former law enforcement officers.
- Escort of defendant by armed officers as directed by the court.
